

A rough price guide to Spyderco knives

The past, the present and the future

„New old stock“, online auctions and the like are quite good sources for older models or discontinued items. While some knives are traded at top prices today it still can be interesting to know the original value of them – or at least the most recent MSRP. Also, if you want to buy a knife that is not really hard to get but discontinued for some time, it can be useful to know the original price tag to get an idea of how much to spend on certain models that do not have the ultra-rare status. The list starting on page two of this document is intended to provide you this information.

Since the Byrd brand is connected to Spyderco as well, I also put a list with all the Byrd models in here, You'll find it on page 13 of this document. Ted's list of all Spyderco models is for sure very well known among collectors and fans. What might not be well known is, that he also put a site online that shows all the Byrd models – just like his site dedicated to Spyderco knives. To get there you can either follow the link to Ted's site on my homepage or you can also retrieve the address from page 14 of this document.

About the list

I compiled my research from old and new catalogs and also the internet into this list. For the moment I only cover folding knives as this is my field of interest. The list is neither complete nor can I guarantee that it is 100 % accurate. Although I try my best I am not immune to mistakes. I also do not cover prices and release dates of every variation – if nothing is mentioned it means that P, S and a PS version exists. Different handle materials are mentioned separately. The list does not only cover discontinued items, it also provides information on Spyderco's current lineup and future releases (if anything is known to the public). Please visit www.spyderco.com for details on current models.

The list should be considered as work in progress. I'll update it as often as I can obtain new information. If you want to contribute, found a mistake or know the data of a missing model I'd like to ask you to contact me. Your input is more than welcome!

This list can be used freely for private but NOT for commercial purposes of ANY kind!

Last words

When I started to write this list I did it just for myself as some kind of database that I wanted to use in those situations when you're desperately looking for the price of a knife that you bought 3 or 4 years ago. I began with one page but the list grew very rapidly – thanks to the help of some great people.

I am glad that this list has been a great success with way more than 6000 downloads since I put it first online. For me this means that it is useful for others too, which is a great motivation for me to continue.

All of the information in this list once was freely available to the public, because it was published in advertisements, catalogs, websites, etc. I believe that information that already was free should also remain free, therefore I only ask you to obey the statement below. Otherwise feel free to use it as you please! Thank you!

Cheers, Rob
